That was the day of roses, and Aymer, back from his two years' travel, had forgotten it till a chance scout recalled it and the girl that had been an incident among incidents in a somewhat thoughtless life. But he was dreaming, and here was Diana. She came in with an apology and a rustle of silk. She was grieved to have kept him waiting. She put up her face to be kissed; the first time of his dining with her, and not to be there to receive him! But it was inexcusable—excusable. She had had an afternoon of delays—just that: delays every where. First the tireless lawyer people, and then the trustees, and at the last moment a young woman from Antioch's about her trolley. What a business marriage was, and the fact of having been through it before did not ease matters at all!

Complicated them, Aymer suggested. Complicated them, she agreed. "I'm giving you a lot of trouble, I'm afraid," he said smiling.

There was to be no sentiment in this marriage. Diana had "gold and green forests." Aymer had spent his gold, and the potential cutting of certain timber at Aymer's keep had brought about the engagement. Lady Aymer had perhaps a hand in the matter, when she asked the comely widow of Fontenbrink Granton of Broad street to the keep to meet her son.

"All that will have to go," she said one day to Mrs. Granton, and waved her hand toward a wood on the hill. Mrs. Granton raised her eyebrows. A day or two later, driving through the wood in question, Mrs. Granton observed a couple of men with notebooks and pencils who saluted the Aymer carriage as it passed, and she observed Aymer's face, too, as he returned their salute with a wave of his whip.

Lady Aymer caught—perhaps sought—her eye and sighed. That evening Mrs. Granton was the first to come down from dressing, and she strolled out on to the terrace. The Aymer carriage was waiting for her. The storm bill had been an eye-sore. She heard a step on the gravel, and saw Aymer approaching from the house.

"The prettiest view in England," she said. He came and stood beside her, and the eyes of each were on the woods. "I am told you are going to spoil it," she said then.

"For a time." "A lifetime." The lady's gaze ascended the hill to the top, where the trees stood up against the sky.

"It seems a pity," she said, and said no more just then. The gong sounded presently, and they went in. You could see the shining bill from the windows of the dining room. Midway through dinner, as the evening closed in, a servant went to draw the curtains. Mrs. Granton faced the window.

"Oh," she said to Lady Aymer, "might he wait a little? It is all so beautiful from where I sit." Lady Aymer turned and looked, and Aymer looked too. In truth, the scene was too fair to shut out.

"Leave the curtains as they are, Charles." "Very good, my lady." So Mrs. Granton saw the woods to the disappearing point of dusk. But later the moon rose. Aymer and

A SECRET.

She found themselves upon the terrace once more. The night was warm. Mrs. Granton's eyes were on the woods. Their changed aspect in the moonlight was excuse itself for any comment. "Must you?" she asked suddenly. He looked for her meaning. "I!" he said. "It is not I." "Who then? Ah, yes. I understand. They are mortgaged." Foreclosure was a word she associated with poor plays. Such things happened then! She remembered the two men with the businesslike air and the notebooks.

A DAY OF ROSES.

A scent of roses made Aymer think of something that was over long ago and that he had almost forgotten. The roses were everywhere in the drawing room he had just entered. They stood in jars on the mantelpiece. Flat bowls held them on tables, and singly in slender vases they were to be seen here and there among the china and the odds and ends of silver and enamel, and delft and marble that filled the dainty room.

And he loved roses. There was one day in the little cottage under the beech trees where Aymer had spent many an hour that seemed of a sudden passing happy now—one day which he and she had called the day of roses. He had only to shut his eyes—indeed, had not to shut them—to see again the flower strewn room. It was Aymer's birthday, and he had brought her roses. They were in the hamper first in which they had been packed. Ah, Aymer's little cry of delight as she raised the lid and saw them lying softly among their damp leaves! Then they were on trays, two big trays that yet would not hold them, and they overflowed on to the table, where, with their foliage, they lay, a litter of crimson and yellow and green, over which, with caressing touch, leaned Aymer, the sweetest flower of all. He could see her gather up a petal and bury her face amid the petals that were scarcely more delicate than herself. Then there was the sacking of things in which to put them. Every suitable vase and jar and put the cottage contained was requisitioned, and there were still roses. He had been reminded vaguely of the women of the sons of the prophets—without calling her all that—and the miraculous pot of oil, for, as with her: "It came to pass when the vessels were full that she said . . . Bring me yet a vessel." And there was no vessel found. Four roses remained over. One of them he must wear.

He chose the smallest, an opening bud. The other three Aymer, kissing them first, put into the girle at her waist.

FIGHTS AMONG TABS.

SAILORS OF THE NAVY EVER READY WITH THEIR FISTS.

The Unavoidable Causes of Friction—Simple Things Start the Quarrels, and Then They Must Be Settled—Bruised Combatants—"Fell Down a Ladder."

The regulation against fighting is perhaps the dearest of all naval regulations. It is impossible of enforcement. If it were enforced to the letter, pretty nearly all hands among the men for year's end to the other. Fighting is practically a necessary evil among men who wear their country's uniform for a livelihood. Officers of experience think at it. They know the bad, contaminating results of bitterness between a pair of bluejackets under the forecastle. They have learned that it is better the thing should be fought out and done with than that dozens of men should be drawn into a quarrel that fosters and grows unless the head of it is broken by a decisive battle between the two men who have been snarling at each other. People who have made ocean voyages often dwell upon the weariness which has overcome them at the sight of their fellow voyagers' countenances, toward the end of a passage. This is a feeling which is aggravated a thousandfold amid the uncomfortable surroundings of a war vessel's forecastle, the hundreds of occupants of which are obliged to be constantly together for from one to three years. Each man becomes thoroughly aware of all his mates' little characteristics, and after awhile, whether these characteristics are good or bad, they jar upon him, if only on account of their monotony. Thus friction is generated, and it is for this reason that the crew of a man-of-war just returned to the United States after a three years' cruise in foreign waters is generally such a sour looking lot, even as concerns the officers' staff, who become quite as sick of each other as do the men forward.

Hardly a day passes that there is not at least one scrap on board most men-of-war, with the promise of a heavier battle to follow. A bluejacket seats himself on another's ditty box, and, on being roughly ordered by the box's owner to vacate, he refuses and consigns the owner to a much less moist place than Davy Jones' locker. The men come together, two or three blows are exchanged, and then, as by common consent, each man draws away, both feeling that the "jimmy legs" (i. e., the master at arms) is not far distant and neither caring for a trick in the "brig." Having thus become involved in the minor fistic argument of the deck, the two bluejackets are looked to by the entire ship's company, being their affair to a satisfactory conclusion. The mere exchange of growls between the two men doesn't go. "Pipe down there, ye men-of-war chavvs, and settle the thing right," is the general remark hurled at them by all hands when they meet in more contests of cuss words, and the sailor who is considered to be the aggrieved man is watched carefully to see if he makes any preliminary moves toward arranging a regular fight. He almost always does.

Nearly all the regular fights between bluejackets aboard ship are pulled off under below in one of the firerooms or in an empty bunker. The empty bunker is preferred on account of its greater isolation. When a fight is to come off between two bluejackets below, all hands know all about it, often including the master at arms himself, but very few of the men, unless they are intimates of the combatants, expect invitations to the fray. There is not room in a bunker for more than half a dozen friends of each man, and even with this number the space is rather contracted.

With a second each man's referee agreed upon by both, the men, stripped naked to the waist, go at it. The fights are not of the rough and tumble order. The men fight according to regular prize ring rules, and their shipmates are present to see that the rules are complied with. As many as 60 rounds are sometimes fought. Ordinarily one of the men goes under by the time the tenth round is called. If the men are unequally matched and one of them is getting palpably the worst of it, all hands in the bunker agree that the fight should stop, and it does stop. If the contestants are about of a sort, the fight is carried on to the end, until a knockout blow is planted by one of the men goes under by the time the tenth round is called. # INDEX-TRIBUNE

SONOMA, FEBRUARY 19, 1898.

APPROX of the bonding proposition, which will be submitted to the people of Sonoma the latter part of March, to give this town a municipal water works system not to exceed $22,500 in cost, we publish the following from the St. Helena Star of the 14th inst:

"The committee appointed at the January meeting of the Board of Trade to inquire into the feasibility of bonding the town to make public improvements has its report prepared and was ready to present it Monday evening, had the meeting of the Board been held as was expected. The committee is composed of W. A. Bingham, W. W. Lyman, W. A. Mackinder, R. H. Pithie and A. N. Bell, and is unanimous in favor of the proposition. In the report it is suggested that $70,000 be raised to be expended in constructing public water works or purchasing and improving the present system. It is estimated that these improvements can be made for $70,000. To these items should be added an electric plant for furnishing street lights. This could be put in at an additional cost of not to exceed $5,000. Now let us figure on the results of such a movement as is proposed. Bonds to the amount of $75,000 issued for fifty years in fifty annual payments could be floated at 4 per cent. It would be necessary the first year to raise $1,500 principal and $3,000 interest. At first glance $4,500 seems a large amount and property owners without investigating the matter would at once say that their taxes would be greatly increased by voting for bonds. We do not believe, however, that such would be the case. The town now pays, in round numbers, $1,000 for water for municipal purposes and has to economize, greatly to the detriment of the town. The income from a water system, placing rentals at low sums and furnishing pure water, certainly should be $1,500 per annum. If an electric plant should be added for lighting the streets properly, an arc dynamo to be located near the water works and water power used, the town could be beautifully lighted and about $600 per year now expended saved. Thus it will be seen that at least $3,900 and probably $4,000 could be counted on as the income and saving to the town. This would leave from $500 to $600 per year to be raised by taxation, and by bonding, the rate for other purposes would be so reduced that municipal taxes would be much lower than at present. Thus it will be readily seen that looking at the proposition from a financial point of view it is a good one for the property owners. The improvements proposed would be permanent and be the pride of the community. They would be enjoyed by the people now here and those to come in the future and all for the next fifty years would share in the expense. While these public works were being prosecuted and long after their completion St. Helena would attract wide-spread attention. The judicious expenditure of $75,000, a large amount of which would go for labor, would cause our town to be more prosperous than for many years. A reconstructed or new water system, new and commodious stone municipal building, stone bridges and electric plant would all be splendid improvements, and are necessary to the prosperity of any town. The only way to make them is to bond the town and let payments be made by those who enjoy them."

The blowing up of the battleship Maine in the harbor of Havana on Tuesday night has horrified and aroused the American nation and war is inevitable between the United States and Spain should it transpire the ship was destroyed by a Spanish torpedo. However, until positive proof of treachery on the part of the Spaniards is proven it would be well for hot-headed Americans to keep cool. We want no Jingoism in this business. It is too serious a matter.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed. For nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Messrs. Edwards and Hill are Not Discharged, But Resign.

It now transpires that Secretary Edwards and Robt. P. Hill, two of the most trustworthy attaches of the California Home, were not discharged at the instigation of Governor Budd in order to reduce expenses, but that both voluntarily tendered their resignations, to take effect March 1st. Mr. Edwards resigns for the purpose of taking a long contemplated trip to the Alaskan gold fields and Mr. Hill for the purpose of devoting his entire energies to the settlement of his late father's estate. The fact of both resignations going in before the Board of Directors at their recent meeting was a coincidence and nothing more. Both gentlemen, as stated in last week's issue, leave the Home with clear records and the sincere wishes of every one connected with the institution.

One of the best sidewalk improvements made in this town recently was the graveling of the walk in front of the premises of Messrs. Aguilon, Seipp and Robin, on First-street West. A few more such improvements would make our sidewalks models and equal to those of many a more pretentious town in the State.

The farmers of Kenwood have a hard row to hoe in their efforts to keep their farms out of the Sheriff's hands. During the past eighteen months five or six have had foreclosure suits filed against them and have been sold out to pay their debts. Another suit was instituted in the Superior Court last Saturday. This time by the German Savings and Loan Society of San Francisco against Asmus Johann, et al., which seeks to recover the sum of $4500 and interest on a promissory note dated May 14th, 1895, with interest thereon compounded semi-annually.

THE "INDEX-TRIBUNE'S" BID THE LOWEST—BETTER SERVICE FOR LESS MONEY.

The Trustees Lay the Matter Over Until the Next Meeting.

That bone of contention the city printing, which has netted the INDEX-TRIBUNE a stipend of less than $75 per year the last fourteen years, came up for discussion before the City Trustees at their meeting last Wednesday evening. Bids were received from the INDEX-TRIBUNE and its rival and were opened and read by the acting clerk of the Board. The items were confusing and in order to enquire more fully into the matter the whole business was laid over until the next meeting.

To those familiar with the printing business and having access to the bids it can readily be seen that the INDEX-TRIBUNE's bid as a whole is much lower than its competitor, but of course that is for the City Trustees to decide.

Law Suit Over a Promissory Note.

J. D. Campbell of San Luis Obispo has commenced suit in the Superior Court of this county against Geo. O. Campbell, a prominent farmer of this place, to recover $600 damages. The complaint alleges that on April 21, 1893, Sylvester Ramage secured judgment in the Superior Court of San Luis Obispo county against Geo. O. Campbell for $280. An execution was placed in the Sheriff's hands and J. D. Campbell loaned to J. C. Stiltz and Geo. O. Campbell, at the request of Stiltz, on an alleged promissory note, the money to satisfy the execution. The note was not taken up and Stiltz being insolvent the plaintiff sued Geo. O. Campbell. The latter denied that he had ever signed the note and claimed his signature was a forgery. J. D. Campbell secured judgment in the Justice's Court, but Geo. O. Campbell appealed and the lower court was reversed. The plaintiff now begins a second action to recover the money.

The Cloverdale Citrus Fair.

The Citrus Fair at Cloverdale opened Thursday, February 17th, and closes Tuesday, the 22nd. This exhibit of Sonoma county oranges, lemons, wines and deciduous fruits will be held in a large and fine building specially erected for that purpose. The citizens of Cloverdale are determined that the display this year will be far ahead of the success of last year. There will be special features every day and vocal and instrumental music of a high order for the entertainment of visitors.

For this occasion the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway Company will sell tickets from Sonoma, good going on Saturday or Sunday, the 19th and 20th, with limit of return Monday, the 21st, at $3.00 for the round trip. Children between five and twelve years of age half rates.

Arrested.

Officer Elphrick of Vallejo Township on Monday last arrested Larry Larimino on suspicion of setting fire to a barn belonging to T. Elphrick, a farmer residing on the west side of Sonoma mountain, Sunday night. The prisoner was taken to Santa Rosa and lodged in jail. The officer was in town yesterday looking for an alleged accomplice of the suspected fire-bug but failed to locate his man.

A Horse on Schocken.

Another horse. This time on Schocken. One day last week a horse valued at $200 belonging to S. Schocken, while grazing in the vicinity of his basal block quarries, fell down an embankment, where it lay for two days wedged in between two narrow banks of an excavation. When discovered the animal was found to be terribly bruised and maimed. The horse was speedily extricated, but died a few hours afterwards.

THE CITY TRUSTEES

WATER PROPOSITION TO BE SUBMITTED TO THE PEOPLE.

Opponents of Water and Light Attempt to Squelch those Much-Needed Improvements.

The City Trustees met last Wednesday night in regular semi-monthly session with a full Board present and President Seipp in the chair.

Clerk R. A. Poppe being absent Trustee J. E. Poppe was appointed Clerk pro tem and proceeded to read the minutes of the last regular meeting, which were approved.

After allowing a bill of $1.25, from P. G. Keil for repairing hydrants, a report from the Tax Collector was read, but no action was taken. The report shows a very close collection and all that remains uncollected is a few cents from a former resident who has removed to other parts.

After a short discussion the poll tax receipt for $3.00, due from Dr. H. H. Davis, was ordered cancelled.

On motion of Trustee Hartin the Clerk was instructed to re-advertise for bids to curb the First-street East extension, bids to be closed at 6 o'clock p. m., on the evening of March 2nd, and to be subject to the following specifications: Posts to be 4x4 redwood, 4 feet apart and to be set in post holes 2 feet deep and in no event to be driven into the ground; curb planks to be 2x10 redwood and securely nailed to the posts; the curb to be on line of the official survey, and the supervision thereof to be under the supervision of the Street Committee.

The matter of city printing then came up before the Board and bids from A. H. Chessmore and the INDEX-TRIBUNE were opened and read, but on motion were laid over until the next regular meeting.

Communications from George Breitenbach and A. H. Chessmore were read. The former is an opponent of the bonding proposition and the latter is opposed to both water and light. The communications, which were presented for the sole purpose of hampering the Trustees in their efforts to follow out the will of the people in regard to those much-needed improvements, were consigned to oblivion.

Statements were read and placed on file from C. Aguilon, Catherine Poppe and the Sonoma City Water Company, showing the water receipts and disbursements, etc., for the past year.

An ordinance establishing the water rates in Sonoma City for the year commencing July 1st, 1898, was introduced by Trustee Bulotti and passed to second reading.

A resolution rescinding Ordinances No. 52 and 53 was introduced by Trustee Hartin, and upon receiving a second from Trustee Bulotti was carried.

Ordinance No. 55, declaring a necessity to exist for the acquisition and construction of a municipal system of water works, was introduced by Trustee Hartin, and upon being duly seconded by Trustee Bulotti was carried by a vote of four to one, Trustee Poppe voting no.

The Board then adjourned.

WHAT IS BEING SAID

Pointers Secured by Our Man Around Town.

That Bob Pasch now parts his hair in the middle.

That Adam Adler, when called upon for a speech after the feast at the recent Fremmen's banquet, said that he had come there to eat and not to talk—too full for utterance as it were.

That Mayor J. H. Seipp is being complimented on all sides for the able manner in which he presided over the Board of City Trustees on Wednesday evening last.

That the "prominent fremmen" (?) who declined to attend the banquet of the Fremmen on account of the presence of the editor of the SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE was J. E. Poppe. That he had to draw the social line somewhere.

The marriage of Chas. Cutter and Miss Florence Thompson took place last Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Thompson, on the Napa road. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. O. E. Hotle in the presence of the many relatives and a number of the intimate friends of the contracting parties.

When serving ice cream that has not been molded into bricks, the spoon used to serve the cream on individual dishes should first be plunged into hot water before each portion is placed on its plate. If this little trick is adopted, the cream presents, instead of an unsightly lump, a smooth and comely oval, almost as pretty as if little molds had been employed.

Fresh in the memory of the many participants is the pleasant party and candy-pull, given at the High School building by a number of the students on Friday evening of last week. About thirty young people responded to the invitations and the evening was joyfully spent with games and other amusements. The festivities were continued until 1:30 in the morning.

If the photographs of yourself and friends are fading it is evidence that they are not the work of Mr. M. Noe, the photographer who has leased the Wegner building on Napa street and who guarantees his work. This is picture taking weather—and Mr. Noe is the photographer, decidedly. A photographer has been a long-felt want in Sonoma Valley and with the coming of Mr. Noe a vacancy has been filled and instead of going to San Francisco or patronizing traveling amateurs our people can have their photos taken by a photographer who is highly recommended and who is a resident among us.

The Ruined California Grape Crop.

The partial loss of the grape crop this year, caused by the heavy rains, is estimated to exceed $1,000,000. Farmers and vineyardists all over the northern part of the State have suffered. While this is true, it is equally a fact that lost and falling strength may be restored by the persistent, systematic use of the great national tonic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which renews and tones the activity of the stomach, liver and the bowels, counteracts a tendency to rheumatism and kidney complaint, and prevents malarial disorders. After exhausting diseases have run their course, recovery is greatly accelerated by the use of the bitters, which improves appetite and imparts renewed vigor to the debilitated physique.

DUTY OF PARENTS.

Vice Guidance Needed For the Youth Who Is Leaving Childhood Behind.

"There is something pathetic in the struggle of the child to cast aside its child nature and put on the nature of manhood and womanhood," writes Florence Hull Winterburn in 'The Woman's Home Companion.' "He is beset internally by misgivings even while he is urged on by ambition. He wants he scarce knows what, but something new and never before possessed. Perhaps, in a nutshell, the great desire of his soul is to be left somewhat to himself, yet with sympathy within call, and to be trusted. It is a great evidence of tact now for the mother or father to say, with a kind smile: 'Do what you think best about this matter, my son. You are old enough to judge what is right.' Happy responsibility! Delightful confidence! Influence is never stronger than when it withdraws slightly into the background, leaving its object apparently free. A good deal is said nowadays about the extraordinary freedom our children have. Seemingly it is so, but looking here and there an observer notes little real change among the average people.

"A young friend of mine whose happy married life has not yet been driven from her memory a cramped and impenetrable web of care and worry, one idea that haunted her from 8 to 18 was that of running away from home. If she had been less conscientious, a little more reckless, what a gulf of ruin her innocent feet might have plunged into to escape the intolerable nagging and interference she was subject to in her father's house!

"We little know what effect our thoughtless and meaningless words of comment and chiding for every small matter that goes wrong produce upon the half grown girl and boy. They are apt to be reserved and to become sullen under restraints they dislike, and when this sullen attitude once sets in we may say farewell to all confidential intercourse between parent and child. To avert such an evil we will do well to apply all our powers of tact and kindness. Let us avoid arousing the spirit of perverseness that stirs in every young creature at this period of life, and, by enlarging his opportunities for action as his ambition extends, soothe any budding revolutionary ideas and inspire in him the trust and confidence in parental benevolence that will be his safeguard when he needs advice and assistance, for youth never stands in deeper need of wise guidance than at this time when there is a desire to dispense with it. But the guidance must be so wise, so tactful, so gentle, that even the most independent young soul will feel that love, and not force, is the motive power that draws him toward what is best, and that he is restrained by nothing except his own honor and trained sense of right."

POLITENESS NOT WANTED.

In the Case of the Elevator Man It Should Be Discouraged.

In view of the fact that the various petty employees of large corporations are usually not overburdened with politeness or consideration for the public, the complaint recently made against a passenger elevator man seems remarkable. It was alleged that the man was "too polite for safety." The man who was the subject of the complaint did what hundreds of elevator men do. When the elevator gets to the ground floor, the conductor usually steps out of the car to get a whiff of fresh air, to say a word to the hallman, possibly make inquiry about the hall game.

The hallman or starter shouts "Going up!" to the people coming into the hall, and the elevator man stands in front of the cage and politely asks his passengers to "step in," while he remains on the outside until the starter shouts "L right!" Then he cuts his sentence short, steps into the cage, starts the elevator and slams the door after the ascent has begun.

Most persons "step in" when asked to do so, but occasionally a man with an eye to self preservation refuses to do so, and one of that class made the complaint. The man who insists on the elevator man being in the car before he will go in is usually looked upon by the man of many ups and downs as foolishly manly, but owners of buildings who are held responsible for the safety of their tenants while riding in the elevators are pleased to see them firm on that point. It may look well for a uniformed man to step aside and ask the passengers to precede him into the elevator cage, but many persons will agree with the man who made the complaint that it is a case of politeness which should be discouraged in the interest of safety. —New York Tribune.

Horse Model Makers.

"Making full sized models of horses is quite a distinct and well paid business, the models for the whole world almost being made in London," said the manager of a great firm of carriage builders in Leamington.

"There is scarcely a considerable carriage builder or dealer anywhere who has not in his shop or warehouse one or more full sized models of horses (we and some other firms have respectively several such models always), which are not only used as a mere attraction, but are also, being movable, put into different sets of shafts, so as to show customers how a complete turnout will look. Then, again, extra good models are made for exhibitions, shows and the like, and many of the best harness makers in the countries keep them in their shops for trying on purposes.

"I have given as much as 80 and 70 guineas for a good model, but of course the general run of these things costs far less, except for exhibition purposes. I have seen models made of the skin of a real horse, but the imitation variety is the rule. The men who make the models—quite artists in their way, some of them—are also the sellers, as a rule." —Pearson's Weekly.

Indians With Blue Eyes.

One of the mysteries of Mexico is presented by the Maya Indians, who inhabit the Sierra Madre mountains in the lower part of Sonora. They have fair skins, blue eyes and light hair, and students of ethnology have always been puzzled to account for them. There is a tradition, however, that these Indians are the descendants of the crew and passengers of a Swedish vessel wrecked on the Mexican coast centuries before Columbus discovered the new world, but this tradition is founded on nothing more substantial than a folkloric tale current among them that their ancestors came over the big salt water hundreds of moons ago.

The Mexicans have never been able to conquer this people. Nominally, indeed, they are under Mexican rule, but really they are governed by their own chief, and whenever the Mexican government has interfered with them they have taken up arms, getting the best of the struggle every time. Their nearest Indian neighbors are the Yaquis, and these two warlike tribes have repeatedly fought to a fine point. Each helps the other when the Mexicans attack them.

The Mayas live principally by the chase, although they cultivate some corn and garden truck. The men are large and well formed and some of the women are remarkably handsome blonds. —Ohio State Journal.

A whistling moth is an Australian rarity. There is a glassy space on the wings crossed with ribs. When the moth wants to whistle, it strikes these ribs with its antennae, which have a knob at the end. The sound is a love call from the male to the female.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail.
